LADY SIDES HER
SHOE AT MAGISTRATE

Three policemen were required to prevent one of the prisoners from throwing herself over the rail of the enclosure. Another woman removed her shoe and hurled it at the head of the magistrate, who caught it deftly in his extended hand.

When Sir John Dickinson suspended the hearing and ordered the court cleared, there was a free fight.

Subsequently the women were again brought in. Most of them were bound over to keep the peace for six months, but they unanimously refused to find sureties.

Roosevelt Wades Through Mass of Accumulated Correspondence Then Turns to Political Conferences.

[By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.]

St. Paul, May 22.—It took two stenographers to keep pace with Colonel Roosevelt today as he made his way through a mass of letters and telegrams and dictated replies.

Colonel Roosevelt declined to see callers during the morning and declined himself his customary horseback ride. Later in the day several visitors were expected for another series of political conferences which he is crowding into the time before his departure for Spain to attend Kermit's wedding.

SCIENTISTS ARE PREPARING FOR ECLIPSE

Next Total Comes August 21 and Will Be Visible in Europe, Asia and Parts of North America.

Washington, May 22.—The eclipse of the sun on August 21 next—total in part of Europe and Asia and partial in northwestern America—is attracting widespread attention of astronomers and scientists, various expeditions being arranged to witness this phenomenon. In view of the public interest in the event, Prof. C. G. Abbot, head of the astronomical branch of the Smithsonian institution, and a recognized authority on solar phenomena, gives the following popular account of the eclipse, and the scientific results sought from such events.

On August 21, 1914 the moon will pass exactly between the earth and the sun, and there will be a total solar eclipse. It will not be observed in America, except as a small partial eclipse at sunrise in the northern states and Canada, but in Persia, Russia and Scandinavia the full effect will be seen.

Although the moon looks about the same size as the sun, it is very much smaller and nearer. The sun is 865,000 miles in diameter and 93,000,000 miles away, while the moon is 2,162 miles in diameter and 239,000 miles away. On account of the moon's small size, compared with the sun, the shadow cast by the moon is a cone, and the point of this cone just barely reaches the earth.

In the August eclipse the diameter of the cone at the earth's surface is only about 85 miles, so that the eclipse is visible as total only in a belt about 85 miles wide stretching over the countries named above. The important cities of Berlin, Potsdam, Kiel, Minsk, and Riga lie near the center of this belt. It passes about a hundred miles north of Stockholm and Tromsø. The eclipse will be seen as partial over a very wide area, including northeastern America, Greenland, Europe, half of Asia and half of Africa. Within this region only a portion of the sun's disk will be hidden by the moon.

Whenever the solar eclipse is seen as total the day will become nearly as dark as full-moonlight, and a few of the brighter stars and planets may be seen. The duration of the totality is longest near Kiel in Russia, where it is 2 minutes 12 seconds. Sometimes the moon and sun occupy such positions that although the moon passes directly between the earth and the sun the shadow cone does not quite reach the earth. Such solar eclipses are called "annular" and are nowhere total eclipses. In the most favorable case a total eclipse may last over 7 minutes at a station, but such occasions are very rare. The very longest total eclipses of this century are as follows:

May 29, 1915—6.5 minutes; Peru, Brazil, Central Africa.
June 8, 1937—7.1 minutes; Pacific Ocean, Peru.
June 20, 1955—7.2 minutes; Ceylon, Siam, Philippines.
June 28, 1973—7.2 minutes; South America, Africa.
July 11, 1991—7.1 minutes; Pacific Ocean, Hawaii, Central America.

There will be total eclipses visible in the United States on June 8, 1918, September 19, 1922 and January 23, 1925.

As the glare of the sun in the sky is removed, and the moon hardly more than covers the sun, it is possible at times of total solar eclipse to see all the celestial objects near the sun. These can not be seen at other times because they are lost in the bright sky light. It is this which makes astronomers so eager to observe total eclipses. The most striking thing seen is the solar corona, a beautiful pearly light stretching away from the sun in all directions, somewhat like the Aurora borealis seen in northern countries.

The corona extends from one to three solar diameters away from the sun. Its form changes from year to year in connection with the number of sun spots which prevail. As the present year will be one of comparatively few sun spots the corona is expected to have a sharp but well marked polar rays and long equatorial streamers. In 1913 a total eclipse will be visible in the United States and as the sun spots will then be numerous the corona will probably extend nearly equally in all directions. Formerly it was believed probable Greatly to Be Desired.

EACH day is "birthday" to thousands of persons, and this day happens to be the birthday of one whose coming into this life has meant much to me—though our paths did not come together until each of us had walked quite a way. I think all birthdays should be made much of. Nothing in life is so wonderful as being born—the birth of a child is at once the perfect mystery and the perfect miracle. It is the first bud on the branch of Motherhood, and Motherhood is Nature's masterpiece. Beside it, all splendor and all stored grandeur sink into nothingness. In its smile is all the gladness of the spheres; in its tears shines God's own pity. Its touch of hand is the great strengthener; the arch guide. And it means the Child, the hope of humanity. That is why I think all birthdays should be made much of.

In my heart are several of which I make much—high among them, this one. For this is the birthday of a true friend, and true friends—in the full meaning of both words—are so fine and rare that it is fit we should celebrate them with joy and Thanksgiving.

In them is a comfort seldom to be found elsewhere; a comradeship which makes for peace and progress—for we are encouraged by nothing so much as the hopes and expectations of those we care for and who care for us. This, I sometimes feel, is the great use of friends—that they spur us to our best and highest, not so much by their actual influence as by their faith in our ability to achieve. I bear testimony of that which I do know, as was said by Paul, the tentmaker, who became Paul, the leader of men.

It is a wonderful thing to have a friend, and not less wonderful to be one. There is, so far as I have been able to learn, no formula for friendship. It is one of those blessed conditions which cannot be made, but like love, is born. When I hear a person say "I am sure we shall be friends," I feel fairly sure of one of two things. Either that person does not understand the meaning of the word "friend" or these two shall not be friends. For to force friendship is as impossible as to cause the clouds to let down rain at one's will.

Yet no word in our language is more carelessly used; none more abused, than this sacred word, Friend.

What is friendship? A thousand answers and more have been given. Yet none seems adequate. Nor would I attempt to define it. But for me it is the unspoken assurance that someone understands that someone trusts, that someone believes me. It is the blessing of having someone to whom I can be my real self and between whom and myself stand none of the pretences or foolish conventionalities which keep the common run apart.

It is a blessing greatly to be desired, and as has truly been said, "The only way to have a friend is to be one."—Leigh Mitchell Hodges, in the Philadelphia North American.

What Father Said. A little six-year-old lad had gone her first day to school. Teacher had quite a time getting her to tell her last name. That evening after school she was playing with a little friend and the "last name" subject was brought up. Mabel said she wondered what God's name was. "Why don't you know?" asked Stella. "No, I don't," was the short reply. "Why, it's Dad, 'cause I heard daddy say so."—National Monthly.

Joke on John Burns. Mr. John Burns always had a stock of good stories. One he tells concerns a visit he once paid to a London lunatic asylum. He was taken all over the establishment and finally arrived at the gardens, where a number of the patients were working. Mr. Burns espied among these a man with whom he had some slight acquaintance, and was about to speak to him when the lunatic exclaimed: "Well, I never! You, too! The very last person I thought to see here."
